course without leaving the comfort

How it works

After enrolment, I'll send you some questions to learn more about you, your painting experience, what problems you've been experiencing, and what area/s you'd like to work on in your personal mentoring course. I'll send you a tailored project and related exercises to get you started and give you confidence, and relevant artist's quotes and images to inspire you. Every Sunday you send me images of your work - step by step or the latest version of the painting, and I'll email you constructive comments and suggestions for improvement, and/or a new project to continue your learning in the most efficient and relevant way.

As an option, we'll also use scheduled Skype calls, with video if possible, to ensure more immediate and interactive discussion about your work.

What's constructive commentary?

I'll tell you what's working, what areas appear to be unique to you or are developing well, and some suggestions for improvements in technique, colours etc. Perhaps I'll also suggest some other artists that may be worth looking at to give you visual guidance, or whose work may demonstrate some of the elements out-lined in my comments. I'll also ask some questions, if appropriate, about how you went about things, so you can reflect more deeply on your work and understand the mechanisms of your intuitive approach, which can enable you to find your unique "voice" more quickly.

How do I work at home?

I'll encourage you to establish a work area at home (if not done already) and give you tips on setting up your studio. I'll even help you to establish a painting routine by addressing the fear and excuses that stop you from facing that easel!

When do I start?

You can start as soon as you can commit 8 weeks to developing your art by sending us weekly images.

This ensures you develop a routine and give priority to your art. However, if you prefer, you can sign up for 8 feedback sessions conducted within three months of your commencement date. Just nominate your preferred option when you enrol, so I know whether to follow you up or not.

Please note: I can only mentor a limited number of students per week, so it's a good idea to book ahead so you won't miss out.

Mentoring Rate: $480 for the eight weeks. Deposit of 50% required upon enrolment, with the balance due before mentoring begins. Deposit refundable up to 14 days notice, less an admin fee of $100. Deposits can be received by cheque, Visa or MasterCard, or direct bank deposit.

It is the student's responsibility to provide eight updates to the tutor within the time allowed. No refund will be granted for missed sessions. However, rainchecks will be offered under exceptional circumstances as determined by your tutor.
